

Wilson Medic One

Dear Wilson Medic One Employees,

Over recent weeks, the AEAWA has been contacted by a number of Wilson Medic One employees who have expressed concerns about workplace changes and conditions. From our discussions, it is clear that many of the issues you face are linked to the fact that your workplace currently operates under the Patient Transport Industry Award, rather than a negotiated Certified Agreement (CA).

Why this matters

The Award sets out minimum conditions such as basic entitlements and a small annual pay increase determined by the Fair Work Commission. However, these increases are not tailored to your specific role or working environment, and the Award offers limited scope to address the unique challenges faced in your workplace. In contrast, a Certified Agreement is negotiated directly between employees (through their union) and the employer. This allows for:

- Higher pay rates tailored to your classification and skills.
- Better working conditions designed around the realities of your job.
- Additional allowances and benefits not available under the Award.
- Clear dispute resolution processes to protect your rights.

In many other workplaces, issues like those you are experiencing — including matters related to surveillance, rosters, breaks, and working conditions — are already resolved or improved through clauses included in a negotiated CA.

How to Achieve a Certified Agreement

To move from the Award to a Certified Agreement, at least 50% of the workforce must be union members. Once that threshold is reached, the union can begin the process of negotiating directly with your employer to secure better pay, stronger protections, and improved conditions. The AEAWA has already been approached by many of your colleagues asking for assistance, and some have also expressed a wish to meet with us directly to discuss workplace concerns.

Benefits of being in an Ambulance Union

Joining a union gives you:

- 24/7 workplace support for any issue, from disciplinary matters to rostering disputes.
- Experienced industrial representation during meetings with management.
- A collective voice to negotiate stronger pay and conditions.
- Legal advice and advocacy when your rights are at risk.
- Access to union resources including workplace health and safety support, fatigue management guidance, and mental health initiatives.

Being part of the AEAWA means you are never alone when dealing with workplace challenges — you have the strength of your colleagues and the backing of experienced representatives behind you.
